

Tips for Parents

LET'S PLAY!

PLAY IS IMPORTANT!

IT SUPPORTS:

- Self-confidence
- Physical development, including coordination and body awareness
- Positive emotional development - children
- regulate frustration and practice empathy
- Connection with playmates
- Creativity and imagination
- Pro-social behaviors like sharing

KINDS OF PLAY

- Social- friendly competition or imaginative play with an adult or another child
- Independent- a child plays alone or alongside another person
- Guided- a caregiver can set the structure or suggest an activity
- Structured- a child follows directions, like when playing a board game
- Unstructured- a child does what interests them, like dressing up or exploring outdoors

WORKING IT IN

- Plan for play by scheduling it into your day
- Everyday tasks can be playful! Use your imagination
- Allow children to experience boredom

SEEK SUPPORT

- Group activities can help you learn from peers
 - see what your local library has to offer
- Engage in a parenting class to learn tips and tricks
- Talk to other parents

REMEMBER...

- Don't be afraid to get messy!
- Play comes with scrapes, falls and other small accidents from taking risks
